

Artist Short Bio

David Smith is a jazz trombonist originally from Boynton Beach, Florida. As a professional jazz performer with 16 years of experience in the jazz idiom, he has performed with leading jazz musicians including legendary trombonist from the world-renowned Duke Ellington Orchestra, George "Buster" Cooper (1929 - 2016), Vincent Gardner, Wycliffe Gordon, Marcus Roberts, Jason Marsalis, Roland Guerlin, Rufus Reid, Leon Anderson, Rodney Jordan, John Gunther, and Dave Corbus.

He leads small jazz groups consisting of trios and quartets under his name performing at local venues, community centers, and concert halls in the North and Central Florida areas. With a deep commitment for jazz music, Smith's mission is to preserve America's original art form, "Jazz" by creating opportunities to perform jazz music in various public settings including restaurants, libraries, schools, community centers, special events, music festivals, concert halls and retirement communities for music enthusiasts and audiences of all ages.
